

Senior/Memory Care Development

Fulcrum Real Estate and Development has planned a senior living residential project designed for the needs of assisted living and memory care seniors within the community. The project, called The Lodge at Glen Cove, consists of 2 floors of primarily assisted living units along with a lower partial ground floor for memory care residents. Designed in the style of Cape Cod, this 111,707 square foot building will be home to nearly 140 seniors. The project includes 43 Memory Care Units and 97 Assisted Care Units.

The memory care residents have a secured entrance within a short walking distance from the hotel style lobby. The residents' homes will consist of studios and one & two bedrooms units designed around two interior courtyards. There will be a dining room and activity room.

The operators of the facility is a family based business. Chronograph Properties operates two other nearby facilities in Fairfield and Vacaville www.RockvilleTerrace.com and www.myCornerstoneLiving.com.

The key contacts for Fulcrum Development will be speakers at our October 19th General Meeting at the Glen Cove School multi-purpose room starting at 7:00pm. They will present information on the project and will answer questions from the audience. Please join us.

Letter from the President

Hello Glen Cove. Fall is setting in as the temperature begins to drop as well as the sun. I was talking to my wife the other day saying I was feeling tired now that the sun had set. She laughed and reminded me it was only 7:30pm. I will take this opportunity to remind folks to replace their air filters to their heating systems and have your system tuned up/inspected if it has been awhile. Leaks in your home heating/AC can be costly. Do you have tips for getting ready for fall/winter? Post them to our Facebook page to share with everyone (www.facebook.com/GlenCoveVallejo/)

As most of you know, we had an increase in 2015 of our LMD assessment. A part of that was to go towards capital improvement projects which would include the entrance way signage. People have asked about the status as we have been told the project would begin soon. I was able to chat and email with Jason Lacey (Acting Maintenance Manager) and Sean Arnott (Landscape Inspector) to have them give us an update and respond to our frustration that more has not been accomplished:

I understand the frustration in the delay of this project. The delay is a direct cause from the LMD Division becoming shorthanded after the firing of the landscape maintenance manager. It's a poor excuse, but it is the truth.

The secondary assessment that was approved by ballot is collected as a separate fee and held in a separate account to be used for capital improvement projects.

If residences have questions or would like updates regarding the upcoming CIP project they can contact me directly...

Jason Lacey

The funds are still being saved and the plan is still in the work. Jason and Sean have been responsive and productive to work with. I hope you will join us in thanking them for their efforts and ask your patience as they work towards improving Glen Cove.

Recently we had 2 homeless encampments spring up in Glen Cove. Thanks to the diligence of neighbors, the city was alerted and the encampments were cleared. If you see this type of nuisance, please report it as follows:

For "in progress" activities, residents should contact the VPD patrol division by calling 911 and speaking to a dispatcher. The Community Services Section is responsible for the investigation of the report. CSS can be reached at (707) 553-7218, and css@cityofvallejo.net. Their webpage is http://www.cityofvallejo.net/city_hall/departments_divisions/police/our_units/community_services_section/.

A Winter Cover Crop

Fall is the time to plant seedlings for cool weather vegetable crops like broccoli, cauliflower, collards, kale, lettuce, arugula, and coriander. Another choice is a plant that will improve the soil and provide a tasty edible. Fava beans (Vicia faba) can be planted during the fall in order to improve soil tilth (physical property that indicates how tillable the soil is) and aid in "fixing" nitrogen (putting soil nitrogen in a form that makes it readily available to plants).

Nutrients essential for plant growth, like phosphorous and calcium, come from minerals that exist in the soil. They are absorbed by plants that grow and eventually die with the nutrients returning to the soil where they are available for a new generation of plants. This is not the case for nitrogen that makes up 78 percent of the atmosphere in gaseous form. Legumes like clover, alfalfa, and fava beans are hosts for nitrogen-fixing bacteria (rhizobia). These microorganisms convert nitrogen in the soil atmosphere (air spaces in the soil) into ammonium, a compound from which plants can obtain nitrogen.

The last two years I purchased fava beans from a local nursery and planted them about six inches apart in late October/early November. Once the rains began the seeds sprouted and grew quickly.

By the end of January they were over a foot tall and by mid-March they were three feet tall and had begun to flower. Fava plants develop small, white and black flowers that are very attractive.

The original intent for growing the plants was to enrich the soil in the vegetable garden so two years ago in April, I chopped down all the plants, cut up the stalks and leaves, tilled them into the soil, and left the roots in place. By the latter part of April it was time to plant tomatoes, peppers, eggplant, zucchini, and other vegetables.

This past year I decided to save one-third of the fava bean crop for eating and the remainder for soil enrichment as I had done the previous year. By mid-April the flowers had been fertilized and green seed pods appeared. Many of these pods grew to be over eight inches in length and contained several beans.

In order to prepare fava beans for eating a few steps should be taken. The first is to harvest as many of the pods as appear to be ready or as many as you feel like processing. Next, from the pointed end of the pod pull the tip and a string-like piece will open the pod and four or five beans will be available. The beans have a coating that should be removed prior to consumption. In order to do so, fill a pot with water, add salt, and bring the mixture to a boil. Put the beans in a metal colander and submerge it in the boiling water for thirty seconds to a minute. Immediately take them out and put them in an ice water mixture to stop the cooking immediately. This process makes removal of the outer coating much easier. The result is tender, tasty fava beans that can be eaten raw and added to a green salad. They may also be sautéed but that will happen with next year's crop.

Person of Interest

Meet George Shelhorn.

George has lived in Glen Cove for 29 years. He and his wife bought a home in The Shores Development and have been residents ever since. George was born in Indianapolis, Indiana. When growing up as an army brat, he lived and traveled the world, Korea before the conflict for a year, Germany 6 years, Kentucky, and Oklahoma. He went to college at Colorado State but graduated from San Jose State with a degree in Physical Education.

After college George wanted to make a difference. He joined the Peace Corps. This move took him down south to Venezuela where he spent the next two years. Most of his work there was building the school's athletic departments that were either nonexistent or very inadequate. During the summers, when school was out, he organized Physical Education camps for poor kids. George recalls "...we were not allowed to drive cars down there because that was a sign of opulence. But we were allowed to ride around on motorcycles and that was a lot of fun."

His next big job was working on freighters and again on this job he traveled on the ships all over the world: Alaska, Hawaii, Japan, Korea, Philippines, Viet Nam, Far East, and South America to name a few. He also worked on the Victory Ship that had been parked in the mothball fleet that went to Viet Nam. He also worked on tankers and oil barges for 18 years fueling ships, and moving fuel from one place to another. Glen Cove was a central location between the refineries in Martinez, Benicia and Richmond. Due to health reasons, he was told that he could no longer work so close to fuel because of the fumes he was inhaling. His love of maritime work kept him away from shore as he shifted working as a deck hand on Ferry Boats until his retirement in 2015.

In retirement, he keeps busy volunteering in several places "That keeps me very busy...." Says George with a smile.

George not only volunteers his time at the Empress Theater but he and his wife are financial sponsors as well.

He is also a member of CERT- "Community Emergency Response Team" that works in conjunction with the fire department during emergencies such as when the Redwood water main broke, and the Napa earthquake.

George also picks up trash in Glen Cove. Armed with leashed Bella- his 8 ½ lbs. poodle in one hand and a white empty pail in the other he embarks on a daily 2 ½ mile walk. His trek takes him past Paddlewheel Drive, South Regatta, Benicia State Park and Whitesides. Most of the garbage that he picks up each and every day is fast food/fast beverage cups, bags and wrappers. Sometimes he finds a pile of stolen mail that he tries to return to the rightful owner.

Next time you see a man walking a poodle, with a white pail picking up trash, waive at him and say "Thank you George!"

Finally, I want to talk about the GCCA a bit. We have a community meeting coming up on Thursday, October 19th that will include our elections for development representatives. Currently, only a couple of area's have the maximum of 2 representatives. I am asking you, if you can, to help by nominating yourself to become a representative. It is not a difficult job nor is it time consuming. Most reps spend less than an hour a week on average. If you want to get more involved, then the board and special projects are always looking for people. If you would like to have your name on the ballot, send your contact information to GlenCoveVallejo@gmail.com (Or respond to the newsletter email). If you are not sure and would like to discuss it, you can email me through this newsletter or call me at 925-285-5873. It's a great way to meet more of your neighbors and help people. I'm honestly gratified every time I am able to help people here in Glen Cove.

On that note, enjoy the rest of your year. I hope to see everyone on October 19th!

Glen Cove School's New Principal

Please welcome to the Glen Cove Community the elementary school's new principal, Roxanne Tuggle.

Roxanne began her career in education as a student teacher here in Vallejo, at Highland Elementary School where she taught 2nd, 3rd, 4th, and 5th grades. After 11 years in the classroom, Roxanne became a Teacher Leader for English Learners at VCUSD District Office where she had the opportunity and privilege to provide training and classroom support for Kindergarten through 8th grade teachers district wide.

Although Roxanne sincerely enjoyed her work supporting Vallejo's talented and hardworking teachers, she missed the relationships with students and their families. Roxanne says she is excited to be returning to the school setting and as Glen Cove's principal where she can continue to build those relationships and have a more direct positive impact on students.

Roxanne strongly believes every student can achieve and that a high-quality education is the right of every child. Roxanne is dedicated to supporting our students, families, and staff in reaching and exceeding their academic and social goals.

Street Sign Replacements

Quite a few of the blue reflective street signs in Glen Cove are bleaching out, mainly those with direct sunlight. The City has a committee that must approve how the signs look and there is not a standard design yet. If your street sign is illegible, take a picture of it and report it on See Click Fix. The City will then replace the sign with temporary ones such as seen on the right. Once the City's committee has made a design decision, the City will replace many street signs including Glen Cove's.

See trash dumped, street light burned out or a city maintenance problem? The SeeClickFix app and website allows you to immediately report the problem, and upload a photo and track the response and corrections. The Vallejo Maintenance Dept acknowledges receipt of the report and adds follow ups or completion notifications appropriately.

Next Door is a great way to communicate with your neighbors on crime, happenings, lost pets, and events. The Vallejo Police and Fire Departments frequently use the Next Door boards for announcements, police actions and warnings, HOWEVER THE POLICE DO NOT READ IT FOR REPORTING CRIMES. Apps are free for iPhones and Android phones. Website sign up is at NextDoor.com.

There is a general Glen Cove group as well as small Glen Cove development groups. If you have already signed up for Next Door information postings, you should have received an invite to your development's group. To find your development by street name, visit our website <http://www.GlenCoveVallejo.com/developmentstreets.html>
