Letter from the President

By Ron Bowen

Ron Bowen, GCCA President

Dear Glen Cove Community,

My name is Ron Bowen, and I have been re-elected as President of the Glen Cove Community Association for 2026 and 2027. I am honored to have been nominated for this role.

My family and I moved to Vallejo in 2006. In 2011, we were lucky enough to find a house in Glen Cove. My wife, our two children, and I have lived in that house for the last 15 years.

I was nominated to be a Development Representative by my neighbor back in 2012. During my time with the Glen Cove Community Association, I served as a neighborhood board member, then Vice President, then President, and spent two terms as Treasurer.

I stepped aside a few years ago to give others an opportunity to serve and to focus on my family and career.

I am honored to have been chosen to lead the association for the next couple of years. I want to give a huge mention of gratitude to Joseph Hayden, who was the last president, all also the current and past board members and officers who have made the GCCA what it is today. I acknowledge the great work they have done. It is my goal to continue that work.

Some things I would like to focus on during my term include:

- Community engagement
- Relevant and interesting community meetings
- Working with Vice President Ralph Mariscal on his very important initiatives as the Glen Cove Director of Safety
- Focusing on coordinating with the City, Public Works, and our own Landscape Maintenance District committee on street and sidewalk improvements

Our recent 2025 survey of residents has updated some of the Glen Cove homeowners' top priorities, including:

1. Eliminating the fire danger from illegal fireworks
2. Improving the inadequate police response time, a topic that the City of Vallejo has tackled with the new arrangement with the Solano County Sheriff's Department
3. Continue the landscape beautification of Glen Cove Parkway
4. Stop drivers from running red lights and stop signs
5. Improve Vallejo schools

The Association, our residents, and our board members make up a diverse, inventive, and intelligent group of people. It is my goal to support anyone I can with keeping Glen Cove a great place to live and to continue to improve our quality of life.

I look forward to working with all of you to make these years productive, welcoming, and impactful for our entire community.

Thank you!

Glen Cove Community Association

Glen Cove is a Firewise Community

by Ralph Mariscal

Glen Cove is a FireWise Community.

Being a FireWise Community is especially important for Glen Cove Community Association because it directly protects lives, homes, and the long-term stability of the neighborhood. Here's why it matters:

Reduced Wildfire Risk

FireWise practices focus on defensible space, vegetation management, and safer building practices. These steps significantly lower the chance that a wildfire will ignite homes or spread rapidly through Glen Cove.

Protection of Homes & Property Values

Homes in FireWise communities are better prepared and more resilient. This not only reduces potential fire damage but also helps maintain — and often improve — property values by demonstrating proactive risk management.

Improved Firefighter Safety & Effectiveness

FireWise planning makes it safer and easier for firefighters to defend the community.

Clear access routes, reduced fuel loads, and informed residents give first responders a better chance to protect homes during a fire event.

Stronger Community Engagement

FireWise brings neighbors together with a shared goal of safety. Residents become more informed, prepared and connected, creating a stronger, more cooperative community culture.

Eligibility for Grants & Insurance Benefits

FireWise recognition can open doors to wildfire mitigation grants and, in some cases, improved insurance availability or lower premiums — a growing concern in fire-prone areas of California.

Environmental Stewardship

FireWise encourages responsible land management that balances fire safety with environmental health, helping preserve Glen Cove’s natural surroundings while reducing hazardous conditions.

Long-Term Resilience

Wildfire risk is not going away. FireWise recognition shows that Glen Cove is planning ahead — adapting to changing conditions and taking responsibility for protecting residents now and in the future.

In short, being a FireWise Community helps Glen Cove stay safer, stronger, and more resilient in the face of wildfire threats — a benefit to every resident. Vista Cove Moves Forward

by Christine Gipson

Update on Proposed Vista Cove Housing Development

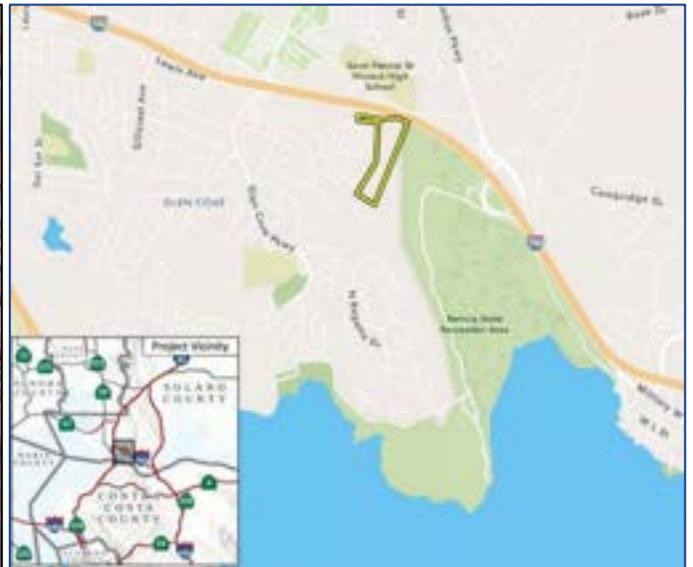

If you've been following this newsletter, you may have seen my previous articles on the proposed housing development of 51 single-family homes on undeveloped land located between Wildflower Avenue and the Benicia State Recreation Area.

The section of land, approximately 20 acres, has been zoned Medium Density Residential (MDR) since the 1970s, when the City was planning for the housing developments that eventually became our Glen Cove community. Under the current zoning code, the property could legally support significantly higher density—potentially hundreds of multi-family units such as condominiums or townhomes.

The project applicant, Sancerra, is proposing to construct 51 single-family homes on roughly 10 acres of the site closest to Interstate 780. The remaining southeastern portion—approximately 10 acres with steep slopes—is proposed to be preserved as open space, with the stated intent of restricting future development in that area.

Proposed Development Site

Proposed Development Site (map)

On Wednesday, January 21, the Vallejo Planning Commission met to review the project. This meeting was originally scheduled for December but was postponed at the City's request to allow additional internal review.

During the January meeting, a number of residents raised concerns about traffic flow, road conditions, restricted emergency access, loss of natural open space and wildlife habitat, and potential impacts on both Glen Cove residents and visitors to the adjacent State Recreation Area. Two local real estate agents spoke in support of the project, citing strong demand for housing in Glen Cove and limited inventory in our neighborhood.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the Planning Commission voted 4–2 to approve the project. A recording of the meeting, along with approximately 2,000 pages of project documents and supporting materials submitted by the City and the developer, is available for public review on the City website.

The project now moves to the next phase, which will require rezoning approval by the Vallejo City Council. This meeting is tentatively set for March 24th. Interested parties will be notified once the date is confirmed. To register as an interested party, contact cesar.orozco@cityofvallejo.net.

The Rivera Family

This is the first year that the Riveras entered the contest and they were thrilled to place. Ricki said his inspiration for decorating his home was his two little girls. Ricki arranged the lights under his wife's supervision. Mrs Rivera was the driving force for joining the contest; Ricki stated his wife kept "needling" Ricki to join the contest! It just goes to show that you can't win unless you enter.

All the contestants were motivated to participate by making the holiday special for their kids. Though both the Madsens' and Abellas' children are grown and live away from home, the lights became a lure to attract their children back home for the holidays. Just goes to show that when love is the power behind our actions, nothing can get in its way!

A big shout out to all the GCCA board members who helped make the contest possible: Dina Morrison for creating the Holiday Light Contest sign; Lisa & Kurt Williamson for hanging the sign on the Glen Cove

CALYX

A Poem by Audrey T. Williams

CALYX

It takes the weight of the world for full potential to burst forth

we are not passive

not citrus succumbing to the squeeze not grapes, not garlic cloves not olives under the press

we are active

like blazing pinecones releasing seeds to grow into forests

like chrysalis breaking open to make butterfly wings strong enough to fly

like roses defying the bud with the collective effort of all our delicate petals

these moments lead to emergence

these moments are required for full bloom the tighter surroundings close in the faster raw essence transforms into multi-faceted mirrors prisms

of strength and beauty

we are all carbon shouldering generations of oppression

we have no choice but to become diamonds

Meet Our Glen Cove Neighbor

An invitation to contribute to our newsletter
By Satish Chohan

Dear Glen Cove Residents,

Our community is more than streets and homes — it is the people who live here, each with a unique story, background, and set of talents. To help us know one another better, we are launching a new monthly feature in the Glen Cove Community Newsletter:

“Meet Our Glen Cove Neighbor”

We invite residents to submit a short introduction (250 words or less) about themselves and their family. This is an opportunity to share:

- Your profession or career journey
- Skills, hobbies, or special interests
- Community involvement or volunteer activities
- What brought you to live in Glen Cove
- What you value most about our neighborhood

A photo is welcome (individual or family), but not required.

The goal of this feature is simple: strengthen neighborly connections, celebrate the diverse talents within our community, and create opportunities for collaboration, friendship, and mutual support.

If you would like to be featured, please submit your 250-word introduction (Word or PDF format) along with an optional photo (JPEG format) to: sschohan@sbcglobal.net

If you don't want to write about yourself, consider interviewing a neighbor!

Submissions will be published on a first-come, first-served basis in upcoming monthly issues.

Let's take a few minutes to introduce ourselves — and discover the remarkable people who make Glen Cove such a special place to live.

Meet Our Glen Cove Neighbor

By Satish Chohan

My name is Satish Chohan and my wife is Surekha Chohan. We live on Chesapeake Drive in Glen Cove, Vallejo.

I was born in India and arrived in the United States in 1963 as a student, beginning a journey that has now spanned more than six decades. My first stop was New York City, where foreign students were advised to stay at the YMCA. On my first morning, I ordered chai with toast and eggs. The cafeteria attendant handed me a tea bag and hot water. Tea bags were unfamiliar to me, and I sat there wondering how to make proper chai. A kind lady noticed my predicament and showed me how. That small moment of generosity made a lasting impression.

I later earned my Master's degree in Mechanical Engineering from Michigan Technological University in 1969. Coming from a tropical climate, I was unprepared for Upper Peninsula winters (see photo on the upper right). When locals proudly called 250 inches of snowfall a "light year" (instead of the usual 300), I knew I had entered a new world. While working at GM Chicago, I earned an MBA from Northwestern University Kellogg School, 1976.

My career included engineering and management roles at General Motors and later executive leadership in industry.

In 1998, I moved to the Bay Area, where I met my wife at a small gathering. It was love at first sight and we were married several weeks later. We have been happily married for 30 years. We have six grandchildren—two in Colorado, two in Sacramento and two on the East Coast. In Benicia in 2007, I acquired a small manufacturing business and expanded into precision manufacturing company serving Silicon Valley. Over the years, I have authored technical papers and secured engineering patents.

Surekha Chohan is a retired dentist who practiced family dentistry in neighboring Benicia for 20 years. She is currently serving as a part-time dentist devoted to Medicare patients, and is in charge of review and guidance for oral surgery.

I am a Neighborhood Representative for Shipwatch community, which includes Chesapeake Drive and Antigua. You can reach me by email: sschohan@sbcglobal.net

More recently, I published a political non-fiction book, Trojan Horse: Democracy Hijacked, that explores contemporary challenges to democratic institutions. It is available on Amazon.

In my spare time, I enjoyed racquetball and following current affairs. Glen Cove has been home for decades, and I look forward to learning more about your journey that brought you here.

This is a kick-off for the column, "Meet your Glen Cove Neighbor" Please share your story in future quarterly publications of Glen Cove Time.

Vallejo Garden Tour 2026

By Ward Stewart

The 23rd annual Vallejo Garden Tour will take place on Sunday, May 17. It is a fundraiser for the Vallejo Naval and Historical museum located downtown. The museum is a repository of historical artifacts that document the long history of Mare Island Naval Shipyard and the city of Vallejo. It holds a variety of community events including art exhibitions, concerts, programs for school children, and much more. On the second floor of the museum, there is a periscope that protrudes out the roof of the museum, and from which there is a 360 degree view of the vicinity.

This year's garden tour features nine gardens scattered all over Vallejo. The garden that is furthest north has a view of the Napa River and is adjacent to the Meadows neighborhood of Vallejo. One of the mansions on Mare Island and its beautiful garden are part of the tour as well. Of special interest to members of the GCCA are the three gardens located in different parts of Glen Cove.

Photos by Suki Liebow

Tickets for the tour remain at $40 and can be purchased through Eventbrite. To take the tour, you must go to the museum at 734 Marin Street and get your ticket as well as a tour booklet that contains the addresses of all the gardens and maps showing the locations. You may go to the gardens in any order you like and enjoy the wonderful variety that will be on display.

Residents, Conservation Groups, and Patwin Tribes Working Together to Steward Cultural Land at Glen Cove Waterfront Park

By Alejandro Cabrera

As spring blooms begin to appear, visitors may notice an increase in wildflowers at Glen Cove Waterfront Park. Since 2021, the Park has been the focus of a native habitat restoration project funded by the Yocha Dehe Wintun Nation, made possible through collaboration with conservation partners and the Glen Cove community.

Today, Glen Cove Waterfront Park offers neighbors and visitors alike a place to run, walk our dogs, fish, connect with nature, or simply enjoy a breath of fresh air. Whether watching the sunrise over the Carquinez Strait or pausing to listen to birdsong beneath a blooming tree, the Park invites moments of reflection and connection. On any given day, visitors might spot groups of third-grade students filled with curiosity as they explore the Park through the Solano RCD's Watershed Explorers Program, or join smiling volunteers from the Vallejo Watershed Alliance as they plant and care for restoration areas. Each visit is an opportunity to engage with this living landscape shaped by shared stewardship and woven with the stories of all who cherish it —work that will be celebrated in 2026 as the community reflects on years of collective effort.

Patwin Tribes and a Historic Cultural Easement

Glen Cove Waterfront Park is located within the homelands and traditional territory of the Patwin people, where Patwin Tribes, including Yocha Dehe Wintun Nation, lived, stewarded the land, and cared for communities from time immemorial — a responsibility they continue to uphold. Today, there are three federally recognized Patwin Tribes: the Cachil Dehe Band of Wintun Indians, Kletsel Dehe Wintun Nation, and the Yocha Dehe Wintun Nation.

Because the Tribe's connection to the Park goes back generations, the relationship was formally recognized in July of 2011 through a cultural and conservation easement with the City of Vallejo.

This shift toward co-management ensured the preservation of cultural heritage and sacred sites without requiring a transfer of land ownership, while also supporting the long-term stewardship of the Park for public benefit. It allows Patwin people to safely access ancestral homelands to practice, maintain, and pass on cultural, spiritual, and traditional lifeways, while providing legal protection for this historically significant area. For Yocha Dehe and other Patwin Tribes, the protection of these places — of which there are countless within the city of Vallejo alone — is a superseding moral and familial imperative, rooted in responsibility to ancestors and future generations. Many of these important Patwin cultural sites are seen in harmony with restored native habitat.

Patwin connections to the region are deeply embedded in local history. Solano County is named after the Patwin leader Sem-Yeto, baptized as Francisco Solano, and Suisun City takes its name from the Suisunes, a Patwin tribe — reminders that the area's cultural roots remain present today.

Prior to Yocha Dehe’s involvement in negotiating the easement, the Greater Vallejo Recreation District had planned major construction, which would have disturbed cultural sites, including ancestral burials. There was public opposition to the construction, but Yocha Dehe Wintun Nation and Kletsel Dehe Wintun Nation, the “Most Likely Descendants” in Vallejo, worked closely with all interested parties, including neighboring tribes across the Carquinez Strait, to ensure the protection of the ancestors buried at the site.

Solano Resource Conservation and Glen Cove Residents

This cultural easement helped spur the ongoing Glen Cove Waterfront Park Enhancement Project. Working with the Solano Resource Conservation District (RCD), Glen Cove residents, and local volunteer groups — including members of the Glen Cove Community Association — the Project focuses on restoring native habitat while protecting important cultural resources.

Over the past few years, the Solano RCD, area residents, and other volunteers have removed noxious plants, controlled invasive weeds, and installed more than 100 different species of native flowers, shrubs, vines, grasses, and trees throughout the Park. Dense stands of common fennel that once invaded the slope adjacent to South Regatta Dr. have been removed and replaced with a diversity of native shrubs and wildflowers. Throughout the grassy area adjacent to the picnic tables, pollinator pods have been installed with vibrant flowers, native grasses, and sedges to attract pollinators and support monarch butterflies.

Invasive winged elm has been removed from along the waterfront slope and replaced with native wildflowers, grasses, shrubs, and vines that help prevent erosion. The riparian area east of the parking lot, previously choked by nonnative blackberry, has been expanded with more than 1,000 native shrubs, vines, and wildflowers.

Planned work in 2026 includes ongoing weed control, additional planting and seeding, and the installation of interpretive signage highlighting native plants, their cultural significance, and their importance to wildlife.

Glen Cove Waterfront Park has long been a special place for the Yocha Dehe Wintun Nation. Today, it also stands as a powerful example of what is possible when Tribal Nations, conservation partners, and engaged residents work together. The Nation extends deep respect and gratitude to Glen Cove Community Association, local volunteers, and community members whose care, participation, and commitment have helped steward this land — ensuring its cultural history and natural beauty can be enjoyed now and for generations to come.

- add multiple phone numbers or emails
- choose which cities or ZIP codes you want alerts for
- opt into specific alert types

How to sign up

Step 1: Go to the official website

Step 3: Add your contact methods

You can choose multiple ways to be contacted:

- Mobile phone (text and voice)

- Email address

It's best to add both text and email so you don't miss alerts.

- Evacuation warnings/orders
